

The Ferrets Magazine Newswire, September 5, 2008

Ferret rescue site; Missing ferret in UK; Ferret rescuer; Artificial insemination of ferrets; Minks wander.

Posted: September 5, 2008 6:45 p.m. EDT

Website For Ferret Rescue

The National Ferret Rescue website is active again and seeking ferret owners to register as a resource to help ferrets in the event of an emergency. Read Now>>

Reward For Missing Ferret

An abandoned ferret that found a new home with a bus driver went missing about four weeks ago, and the bus company is offering a reward for information that leads to the ferret's return, reports This Is Lancashire \(UK\). Read Now>>

Enthusiast Becomes Rescuer

UK woman's love of ferrets leads to opening a rescue that currently shelters 72 ferrets, reports Express & Star \(UK\). Read Now>>

Science Helps Endangered Species

Artificial insemination is helping boost the population of endangered black-footed ferrets, reports Science Daily. Read Now>>

Minks Wander After Unauthorized Release From Farm

Most of approximately 600 mink were recovered but some died after being set loose from a breeding farm in Utah by animal activists, reports the Associated Press. Read Now>>