

The Ferrets Magazine Newswire, October 10, 2008

Legalize Ferrets; Exotic Pets; E. Coli; Xylitol; Bedfellows; Biologist Wins Award.

Posted: October 10, 2008, 6 p.m. EDT

Legalize Ferrets Revival This Weekend

The Legalize Ferrets Revival takes place in San Diego this Saturday, reports the Los Angeles Times. Read Now>>

AVMA Response To Article About Exotic Pets

In a recent press release, The American Veterinary Medical Association responded to an article in Pediatrics that stated children are at risk is exposed to nontraditional pets. Read Now>>

Possible E. Coli Contamination Prompts Recall Of Frozen Beef Products

The FDA is reporting that Colorado Foods Products of Colorado and Astro Meats And Seafood Inc. of Florida are recalling some of the frozen beef products produced due to possible E. Coli contamination. Read Now>>

The Danger Of Pets Consuming Xylitol-Sweetened Foods

More and more dogs are being poisoned by consuming food with the sweetener xylitol, and some ferrets and rabbits have also been affected, reports the SF Gate. Read Now>>

Strange Bedfellows

A Brighton man wakes up to find a ferret in his bed that he guesses climbed into his flat through an open window, the Argus (UK) reports. Read Now>>

Biologist Wins Award

A biologist who played a key role in reintroducing black-footed ferrets to the wild wins a National Park Service award, reports the ArgusLeader.com. Read Now>>