

The 411 On Black-Footed Ferrets

Check out these must-see resources for black-footed ferret information.

By Renee Downs

Posted: June 23, 2008, 5 a.m. EDT

A video of black-footed ferrets being released into the wild can be viewed on The Nature Conservancy website. Click here>>

Organizations With Active Black-Footed Ferret Captive Breeding Programs Smithsonian National Zoological Park (Washington, DC) Cheyenne Mountain Zoological Park (Colorado) Louisville Zoological Garden (Kentucky) Phoenix Zoo (Arizona) Toronto Zoo (Ontario, Canada) Turner Endangered Species Program (New Mexico)

To observe black-footed ferrets at the National Zoo, click here>>

Websites With Black-Footed Ferret Information
Black-Footed Ferret Recovery Program
Prairie Wildlife Research
U.S. Department of Fisheries and Wildlife
Defenders of Wildlife
The Nature Conservancy